Three American girl heads, up to date and characteristic, are the subects for Swift's Premium Calender for 1906, originated and drawn in pastel by Philip Boileau. Twelve colors are used to faithfully reproduce these heads in lithograph.

The entire calender is 12x35 inches in size and is so executed that it combines the artistic with the color effects which are only obtained in pastel. Swift's Premium Calendar fer 1906 is a worthy addition to the series of City of Tounty and State aforesaid, handsome art calendars issued by Swift & Company.

Philip Borleau, the artist of this calendar, was born in Canada. Educated in Ergland, his art training abroad has been mostly in Italy. Mr. Boileau is comparatively a new figure in the art world. Six years only has ne pursued his work as a professional artist, but during this period he has established himself among the foremost of American pastel artists.

This calendar is one of the finest of the year, and is especially appropriate for holiday giving.
